

The Glades

And Its Affairs

When Thomas Jefferson, third president of the United States, had brought about the acquisition of the United States of the empire known as the Louisiana Purchase it was in pursuance of a policy of national expansion and internal improvement and for the protection of his fellow citizens who had ventured beyond the boundaries of this nation into a foreign land. The land of the Louisiana Purchase having come under the flag of the United States, the pioneering Americans in that country, and to them and the territory of military protection and internal improvement—troops and barracks buildings, roads and postal service. "Provide them yourselves," Jefferson sent back answers.

The relation of the Florida Everglades to the State of Florida can be compared with the relation of the Louisiana Purchase to the United States government, and the relation can properly be made of the Jeffersonian precepts.

We are celebrating the bicentennial of George Washington, "first in war, first in peace and first in the hearts of his countrymen," and on April 13 will be the anniversary of the birth of Jefferson, of whom a competent scholar of the United States government, and the relation of the Louisiana Purchase to the United States government, and the relation can properly be made of the Jeffersonian precepts.

Jefferson was the greatest friend of the small farmer this country ever had. His country was not too soon to provide for every possible means that as few as possible could be made of a little portion of land. The small landowners are the most precious portion of the State. He favored the acquisition of Louisiana territory because it would aid in providing land for farmers, but when the farmer had been developed in the land, then it was up to the farmer to exert his energy and his industry upon it—this is the business of the Federal government.

There are calls upon the State of Florida and the Federal government for prevention and control of much fire, for maintenance of water in the soil to the exact degree of having the moisture meet from bottom to top, for roads to lead to dead-ends, for the crop by a bureau of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

If this nation is to endure on the foundations laid by the fathers of the republic, there has got to be a step to this thing of calling on the father holder in the baby's diaper, upon the father's nose, upon the Sunday dinner, raising the quantity of tobacco in an old man's pipe and dust the bean vision dependence on boards of education and on the shoulders of young congress and presidents is causing too many people to neglect their own affairs.

Mr. Harold Rosenberg, wife of the Canal Point postmaster, has returned home from a business where she and the baby stayed for a time after they left the hospital.

PUMP PLANT POWER FOR WATER WORKS

IS NEW SUGGESTION

Huge Potential Power Dormant on Solid, Expensive Footings

CHALLENGES THOUGHT BY DRAMA BOARDS

May Be Means of Reducing Capital Required For Water Plants

There are resources in the Lake Okechobee region that are not being made use of as fully as they can be, and one of the possessions from which more valuable use can be had is the power of the sub drainage districts' pumping plants. These are powerful engines which represent a large part of the hundreds of thousands of dollars invested in the building of the plant which is being paid from taxes collected from the residents.

Since the hurricane was made, that the drainage districts' pumping plants could be used as those "houses of refuge" for which there was some call at that time, and that the buildings that housed the engines and pumps were on foundations of concrete and that the wind could affect them, and that the sheet iron walls and roofs of the buildings could be used.

Mr. Patterson is a supervisor of at least one of the sub drainage districts in the Lake Okechobee region. He has dealt with the drainage districts' pumping plants for many years and is a man of practical common sense as well as a good technical man, being a civil engineer of broad experience. He has suggested but one of the ways the investment of taxpayers' money can be used in addition to simple drainage.

If there are to be canning plants in this region, such plants will have to have power and there is power in abundance at the pumping plants, where the engines are the Palmetto-Moreau Diesel engines, run on cheap fuel. Installation of generators will serve to convert power into electric energy.

Investigation may show that the drainage districts' pumping plants can be used in connection with water system plants for communities around the lake.

The Pahokee district has a plant of this size, where although the engine is not a satisfactory one, there are foundations on which another engine could be mounted, and there is a pump to pull water from the lake, with ample space for the installation of a generator.

The pumping plant site on the Florida East Coast, where water is to be pumped to the business center.

At other points around the lake there are drainage district pumping plants located on the levee, and thus close to a source of supply for water for domestic use, sanitation and fire protection.

As treated water can be stored in a reservoir and standpipes, and some method will have to be devised that will ease the strain of financing.

TWO ARRESTED, CHARGED THEY FIRED TOLL HOUSE
Pelix Jones and Charlie Burke were arrested in Okechobee last week on a warrant charging them with having set fire to the toll gate house near the residence of the late W. J. Conner. The complaint was made by Deputy Sheriff Swain of Pahokee, son of Mrs. W. J. Conner. The toll gate was burned January 1, and the evidence in the case against Jones and Burke is that they were the ones who set the toll gate house on fire. Sheriff Simmons of Okechobee county, and there is said to be an eye-witness to the burning.

List Your Land, But For Information Only

This newspaper is not a real estate office, but an accommodation to subscribers who own land. It will pass along to inquirers any information about lands in the Lake Okechobee region that is sent to it.

Please do not get the idea there is a land boom coming on, for there is not; most of the inquirers want to lease the land, not buy it, and some of the inquirers will want the owner to put up some money to help finance the development.

The editor does not promise to answer any letters. All he will do is file the letters and let his calligrapher read them, so as to save time in talking.

DEMAND REVIVING FOR DRAINED AND Value of Water Control and Deep Muck Appreciated For Fruit Trees

A demand is developing for more water control in the Lake Okechobee region, and the value of water control and deep muck is appreciated for fruit trees.

A promoter made an inquiry as to the value of water control in the Lake Okechobee region, and the value of water control and deep muck is appreciated for fruit trees.

Another call was for cut-and-pump suitable for citrus, but that request could not be met because the price the applicant wanted was below the figure the owners demand.

Power Line Extension Type of Progress

Pole by pole extensions of the Florida Power & Light Company lines, separate items small of themselves but considerable in the aggregate, are typical of the progress being made in the Lake region.

The power line was extended this week from the Canal Point-Pahokee road down a back street to the site of the Southern Bell Telephone Company's local exchange building.

At South Bay an extension of the line was made to serve five dwelling houses and the Florida East Coast railroad station, and the Lake Shore Supply Company and Frank Frank's lumber yard.

Senator Wagg and Representative Owen Support and Urge Project

ROUTE VIA ST. CLOUD TO FT. LAUDERDALE

Hope To Make It An Aid To Aviation and Flood Control Work

Prices of Beans Same Here and Elsewhere

Most of the beans offered in the past week were of an inferior quality as to make a wide range in price—from $1.25 to $2.10 for Southflor, but this was not met below the range at Pompano and in the Rio Grande valley.

At the packing house in Belle Glade of C. W. Garner, Inc., where most of the cars are packed, eggs-plants were quoted at $1 and peppers about the same.

The market for peas and cabbage is still holding up well enough to warrant shipment by all growers who have any of these commodities.

EDITORIAL. Bill Crews. There were two boys from Pahokee who went to the C. M. T. camp last summer. These camps are held annually.

These boys came back telling of the nice time they had swimming, playing ball, tennis and the like, and bragging of the good things they had to eat. And of course there was still drilling mixed in with all this.

These boys have talked things up and I think there are a whole squadron of boys going this year from here. Pahokee in the near future will be prepared for war, with all little soldiers. These are always "see-applications" than vacancies, but here is hoping the home boys luck.

JUNIORS. The Junior Class was divided into two groups and each group tried to see who could sell the most tickets to "Way Back Home." Van York was the leader of one side and Carlo Humphries was the leader of the other. It was decided that the losing side should give the winning side a party, and so now it is up to Van and his side to give Carlo and his side a good time.

Amie Meryl-maly, Beth Daane, Edvin Vinson and Jewel Vinson were on the absent list last week.

Julian Chandler, Carlos Humphries and Bill Crews attended the basket ball tournament in Miami, Friday.

The Junior chapel program consisted of a group of songs, readings and jokes.

The Sophs played the Freshies in basketball and were defeated 5 to 9 last Friday afternoon. I think the Sophs try to improve, but the Freshies beat them in base ball, too. I don't see any reason why the Freshies should win over us in base ball because Christine Herrin held second base and she was good at dodging the ball but I don't reckon she knew any better because she is from Alabama near Georgia.

Mary Ella Domah was absent from school a few days last week because Christine Herrin held second base and she was good at dodging the ball but I don't reckon she knew any better because she is from Alabama near Georgia.

Virginia Hoenisch.

Even though George Washington's birthday is over, we should not forget what a wonderful man he was. He had an extraordinary strong character; honest, true, worthy, a natural leader. His honesty was proved by many small but large incidents, his leadership was unmistakable. Though he had only a poor education he rose to great rank as an army officer and as our first president of the United States. I am sure it is quite easy for us to see how he gained the title of "First in war, first in peace and first in the hearts of his countrymen." If only we, ourselves, could have a firm character like Washington; we should feel that we have accomplished a very great thing.

The girls of Pahokee High closed the basketball season last Friday with a game between the Freshmen and the "Sophomores." The Freshmen won over the Sophomores girls with a score of 9-5. Both teams played with some difficulty, some being late for practice and others being or having sore toes.

Mollie Maloy was appointed captain of the Sophomore team, Ann Fultz captain for the Freshmen girls.

"Pet" Thompson and Gettie Smith were the referees, while Miss Young was time keeper, and Laurie Cross was score keeper.

The girls all seem to have improved this year but we had hard-learned to play. Although they didn't win as many games as last year, they all played better ball. The girls plan to elect the team captain for next year in a few days. Everybody be thinking about the one to vote for.

CONVICT CAMP BUILT ON ST. LUCIE CANAL

Crew To Come This Week To Start Work On New Road To Indiantown

Shackade and mess hall and bunk houses have been built at a point on the south side of St. Lucie canal about two and a half miles west of Indiantown bridge as a camp for a party of state convicts who are due to arrive there this week to start construction of a state road on a new line between Indiantown and Port Mayaca. Free labor was employed in the construction of the camp.

Construction of the camp commencing the information given in the issue of The News of January 22, obtained through the Stuart Daily News, that the State Road Department was to build a new road, a good one, on a new line set further back (south) from St. Lucie canal.

State Road Department surveys for a month have been running the lines for the new route are still engaged on that work on the basis of the requirements of the food control which includes the installation of spillways or catch-basins, along the canal to prevent erosion.

The new St. Lucie canal along road will make a route that will shorten the mileage between the canal and the upper east coast.

BANK OF CANAL POINT TO PAY DEPOSITORS

Ten Per Cent of Frozen Accounts To Be Credited Next Monday

A payment of 10 per cent of the amount of their claims is to be made by the Bank of Canal Point to the holders of certificates for frozen deposits.

Payment will begin next Monday, March 7, on presentation by the depositor of his certificate.

A prior payment was made to depositors when the bank reopened last year under the agreement of "freezing" deposits and the payment now made is in further execution of that agreement.

The bank is now making a conversion of some of its old frozen cash.

Further payment to depositors are to be made as the bank realizes on the old claims.

CANAL POINT

Dr. and Mrs. Sforza left Saturday on their return to Washington, D. C., after a stay of several months at the U. S. canal breeding station north of town, where he is the director.

Dr. Sforza does not expect to be back for some time. Dr. G. W. Gibbons will be transferring Dr. Gibbons but the decision was reached to retain him on field work.

Ralph O'Neal was over from Clewiston Sunday, "just looking around," he said. He was accompanied by his little daughter and a friend. Ralph was a boatman on the lake and captain for many years and lately he ran a boat for the Nutting Company which made bonting to test formations for the U. S. Engineers.

Loren Hand, editor of the Delray Beach News, visited the upper Glades Sunday to see what is going on, and while in Canal Point he called on Mr. and Mrs. Andy Milliken, who lived at Delray Beach.

Judge E. C. Davis, formerly of Lake Worth and now of Ft. Lauderdale, was in Canal Point Saturday, accompanied by Arthur Griffithing of Miami, who has a large subdivision near Arch Creek.

D. H. Saunders of Fort Pierce, a lumber salesman, called on his trade agent, Mr. Alex. C. M. Anderson, past exalted ruler of the Fort Pierce Elks Lodge, came out with him. The convention of the State Elks Association is to be held at Fort Pierce April 17, 18 and 19, and Mr. Anderson has been invited to attend.

A copy of the Virginia souvenir year book of the Alexandria, Va. Gazette has been received at the office of The News, sent by Mrs. Theodore A. Filly, widow of late Rev. Paul A. Filly, who was pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church at Canal Point in a period between the 1928 hurricane.

The special edition of the Alexandria paper contains much matter relating to the Washington, D. C. fair, and is being issued on the birth anniversary, Mrs. Filly, if not a native of Virginia, has lived in the state for many years.

Dr. B. A. Bourne of Clewiston, who is carrying on investigations of the sugar cane for Everglades experiment station and the sugar cane, was a visitor to Canal Point in the past week. He said he was over to look at some sugar cane in section 29 that was behaving strangely.

Dr. Bourne said he was in the cane field at Canal Point a few years ago, until he resigned to take charge of the Dahlberg sugar cane in the state for many years.

G. M. Todd, Earl Smith and Jim Misset and members of the family have been to Plant City Tuesday to attend the Baxter funeral.

A "sheet-writer" was in town the first of the week—a subscription solicitor, or a pretended solicitor. He began his spiel by asking for money on the claim that the money was for postage and wrapping. He refused to exhibit any credentials from the publishing house, may be he didn't have any authority to collect money, in which latter case the chances are he would keep the money and the supposed subscriber would not get any magazine at all.

CANAL POINT PROPERTY LOOKS GOOD TO OWNER

Henry E. Miller of Andover, Mass., who owns the 25-foot front corner at Canal street and Conner highway in Canal Point, was a visitor this week, looking at the property and calling on the old friend Clinton Clifton. He is accompanied by his wife and son, who have been at St. Petersburg on a winter vacation trip. "If I had known what I know now about this place, I would have put $25,000 into building at Canal Point instead of in my home town," he said to Andy Miller during his stay here.

30 ACRES OF YOUNG BEANS

F. M. Chastain, farming some of the T. J. Watkins land north of Canal Point, has planted 30 acres of beans in the past two weeks and has 30 acres more of ground that is in condition for planting. He is still fighting the bean leaf-hopper but he says the insect is less menacing since the rain and the wind system. Mr. Chastain is using the mole-drained land that Frank Y. Davis had in appraisement last year, and he has put in a pump and is irrigating the land.

BOARD DEALS FOR CONNERS HIGHWAY

State Buys Eight Miles and Leases and Options To Buy Another Section

Prospective candidates for nomination in the June primary did not make a last week on the Connors highway deal and caused some apprehension among residents of the territory that might be put to the four-fishing.

After the play of four-fishing that was thought to be necessary to impress the client with the seeming importance of the principle the transaction went through the State Road Department as had been planned.

The board bought eight miles of the road outright and lease and option on other sections.

COSSIP

Tom Moody says it takes a good bean crop to support a pepper crop. The only way to grow peppers, he said, "They're sitting there waiting for the new beans to come up."

Pratt Pope made a good crop of beans on ground near Sand Cut and then made another good bean crop on the same land and this year ground in shape for the third successive crop. He made the second crop by carefully getting rid of all the vines of the first crop.

Use was made of a local resource of the Everglades at the headquarters of the Pahokee Rotary Club recently when Lennie Stuckey brought in a quartette of his friends, colored men from the Stuckey family. During the World War singing among the soldiers and the civilian population was encouraged, as an aid to the maintenance of morale, it was understood, and singing at club meetings was urged by the officers at headquarters of the Rotary International, probably for the same reason.

The white and black races are on good terms in the upper Everglades and it is believed that "Poodle," the leader, who is an associate of the meeting as much as did the Rotarians, although they were not asked to stay and take pot-luck at dinner.

Some years ago, at another place, a negro speaker was praising a white man who was known as a friend of the colored people. The speaker said that his heart was black, the negro said, trying to make the point that there are good qualities in men despite the difference in color and not meaning that the white man was a black-hearted villain. Lennam out of the rough waters of the lake that were produced by the high winds. Two outfits belonging to the Paterno of Moore Haven were working on the lake front lately.

There were some lessons there for the Rotarians if the club members were if a member for the reminder of the origin of the music, the selections being pure folk-song, if that means anything, it could be sent McCall's Magazine free and wound up by asking for money on the claim that the money was for postage and wrapping. He refused to exhibit any credentials from the publishing house, may be he didn't have any authority to collect money, in which latter case the chances are he would keep the money and the supposed subscriber would not get any magazine at all.

Most of the members of the Pahokee Rotary Club are young men, and some of them, having been raised in the north, got their first information about negro singing from minstrel shows in which the performers were white men with burnt cork on their faces. Only the old man, the antediluvian cuss, lived in his childhood way of even the river, where his folks were at the time, the paintings on the walls of caves, the statues from ancient Greece and the references made on the clay tablets of pre-Babylon to the life and the love of the music of the human voice, we know only what Mr. Edison enabled us to know by his invention of the phonograph.

It is complained that Greek musicians degraded themselves by imitating the roaring of lions and the whistling of winds, and some of us would plan of the bauphoniae, say Aristotle, who wrote on every subject, and that certain, high-bred, old men, but the students—ancient modes are not agreed—of the Greek writers meant by "high notes."

FUR TRAPPERS TURN TO GATOR HUNTING

ARCADIA, Feb. 28.—The close of February terminates the trapping season and sends the 200 or more trappers who operate in ten Florida counties, with Arcadia as the headquarters for marketing their product, to hunting alligators. The fur season just ending has brought $10,000 to the trappers for their fur. A Fur company of this city has handled over 500 pelts this season.

Although trappers cannot trap the fur-bearing animals after February 1st, they can still sell the furs through March 15. Among those who make the major part of their livelihood through trapping is the Seminole Indian. This has been a very poor season for the Indians, say a fur buyer.

The fur season just ending has brought $10,000 to the trappers for their fur. A Fur company of this city has handled over 500 pelts this season.

The largest part of the skins handled by the local company are coon skins. There have been 6,000 of these handled by the company this season and these have all gone to the manufacturing concerns for college boys. These coats are made by companies in the east.

The finest pelts handled here are those of the otter. They are circular drier and are mostly shipped to Japan and made into coats for the Japanese. The other pelts being good prices generally, bringing $5 or $8 each. The local company handled 200 of them this season.

Possom and fox skins are sent to Europe for manufacture of hand-some furs. The local company handled around 100 of these this season.

When the season is over, trappers turn their attention to the alligator. The alligator hides are merely cured and shipped raw to Germany where they are made into many other articles. Last season was a very poor one for alligator hides as the water was too high but in a good season the local company has handled as many as 8,000 of these hides.

Only a few scattered pieces in the United States are left where the fur-bearing animals can be trapped for their pelts. The trapping of the animals in the Everglades is one of the few ways left for the Seminoles to make money and fires were so prevalent this season that many of the pelts brought in showed signs of being on them. The Indians are, expert not only in trapping but in the curing of the skins.

Things. Did you ever think of that "homely" means "plain, coarse, not comely," as well as meaning "characteristic of home life?" How do you account for that? Lennie's boys sang of guitars—their interest was in what they knew most about, the next generation of Everglades farm hands will sing about tractors, and they will compare the qualities of Fordsons, Olivers and Cases. It would be hard to fit "McMormick-Deering" into a plantation song.

We can know something of the evenness of instrumental music from the hieroglyphics on Egyptian tombs, the paintings on the walls of caves, the statues from ancient Greece and the references made on the clay tablets of pre-Babylon to the life and the love of the music of the human voice, we know only what Mr. Edison enabled us to know by his invention of the phonograph.

It is complained that Greek musicians degraded themselves by imitating the roaring of lions and the whistling of winds, and some of us would plan of the bauphoniae, say Aristotle, who wrote on every subject, and that certain, high-bred, old men, but the students—ancient modes are not agreed—of the Greek writers meant by "high notes."

"Suicide Fleet" Is Sensation Spectacle

Thrilling action, colorful spectacle, a strong story and sterling performances by an unusually good cast combine to make "Suicide Fleet," RKO Pathe's pretentious naval melodrama of the World War, an outstanding film attraction. Bill Boyd, Robert Armstrong, James Gleason and Harry Banner head the excellent cast in which Ginger Rogers is leading woman.

The picture, which opens Thursday night at the Prince Theatre, was produced on a big scale with quality keeping pace with production values. A story of the Navy, it uses not one warship but a fleet. In the sea battles actual ships are sunk by real shells as never brought to the screen.

Three pals who love the navy girl enlist in the Navy when the United States enters the World War. The destroyer on which they are serving captures and sinks an enemy sailing vessel that has been acting as a supply ship for submarines while masquerading as a neutral. The pals then volunteer as members of the "suicide crew," "suicide" meaning that they are serving captures and sinks an enemy vessel. This ship is to act as a bait for the submarines.

This battle action is healthful in its realism. The supreme thrill comes, however, when a projectile from one of the enemy's strikes the powder magazine in the windjammer and sends the whole after part of the vessel hurtling several hundred feet into the air.

Boyd gives a sincere performance as an iron reared fighting man of the Navy that ranks above anything he has ever done before, not excluding his work in "The Volga Boatman."

Buyer Rejected Beans Made To Pay For Them

The secretary of agriculture has ordered the Bloom-Rosen-Klein Company of Cleveland to pay the Atlantic Coast Produce Company of Delray Beach $60,000, as a result of a complaint filed under the perishable agricultural commodities act, according to an announcement by the bureau of agricultural economics, United States Department of Agriculture.

The Atlantic Coast Produce Company sold to Bloom-Rosen-Klein Company, on November 15, 1931, a certain amount of Florida Bountiful green beans described as clean, young and tender from first picking, at the agreed price of $1.20 per hamper, f. o. b. Florida.

The exact question for determination in the case was whether the beans as loaded and delivered to the carrier were clean, young, tender, of first picking and good pack. Much was made by the Bloom-Rosen-Klein Company of the fact that the hampers were slack filled upon arrival at Cleveland.

The decision was that the hampers were not slack enough to warrant the rejection. The Cleveland firm, P. F. had remitted the shipper only $16.7 for the car.

SEX IN AVOCADOS AND POLLINATION

Interplanting of Varieties Necessary For Use of Flower Opening

Dr. A. B. Stout, who made important discoveries in the pollination of avocados in a survey made in the Redland district of Dade county in 1925, has been loaned to Dade county by the New York Botanical Garden for the purpose of conducting further studies along this line. He made an address on the subject of avocado pollination at Miami University last week, and has written an article for the Homestead Leader-Enterprise, which gives much new and valuable information.

By Dr. A. B. Stout.

That the fruit pollination of the flowers of avocados is an important factor in the production of adequate crops of fruit is evident both from a study of the flower behavior and from orchard experience.

Avocados fall into two main groups in respect to flower behavior.

In the "A" group of varieties, the flowers of a new set open for the FIRST OR FEMALE OPENING in the FORENOON. These flowers close during midday and remain closed until the NEXT AFTERNOON when they open for the SECOND OR MALE OPENING. With the succession of sets day after day, the entire tree normally opens in the forenoon and as a male in the afternoon.

For the "B" varieties, the flowers of a set open for the first or female opening in the AFTERNOON and for the second or male opening in the following FORENOON, or, if the weather is cool, in the forenoon of the second day. With this cycle the entire tree functions as a male in the forenoon and as a female in the afternoon.

This unique behavior of the "B" varieties as "reciprocating" in their flower behavior or as being adapted for mutual cross-pollination. Under present conditions in orchards many avocado trees bear few or even no fruits year after year. Certain varieties are especially unfruitful; others are irregular and erratic in bearing. It seems certain that much of the poor bearing is due to lack of proper pollination and that maximum and reasonable uniform yields, at least by most varieties can only be expected when there is abundant and proper cross-pollination between "A" and "B" varieties.

The proper interplanting will greatly increase the chances for

Effects Of Cold In Ripening Tomatoes

Chilling has slight effect on the ripening of tomatoes picked in the mature green stage, the United States Department of Agriculture has found after four years of experimental storing and ripening of this product at different temperatures.

This is one of several discoveries significant for Florida shippers and growers of tomatoes which are reported in detail in technical bulletin 2687-T, "Effect of Various Temperatures On the Storage and Ripening of Tomatoes," just issued by the department.

In the tests green tomatoes were exposed for 15 to 21 hours to temperatures as low as 25 degrees Fahrenheit without their becoming frozen and without affecting their subsequent ripening. However, some were stored five to eight days at 32 and 36 degrees and subsequently ripened normally though ripened slowly because of the longer exposure.
